

Social Media Policy

Purpose

Prolifics recognize that social media provides opportunities for communication and professional engagement, but it also carries risks and responsibilities. This policy establishes expectations for appropriate social media use while protecting employee rights. This policy applies to all employees.

Scope

"Social media" includes all forms of online communication and content, including blogs, websites, social networking platforms, forums, and other electronic media, whether or not affiliated with the Company.

Company policies apply to social media activity in the same manner as they apply in the workplace. Employees are responsible for their own social media content and may be personally liable for unlawful, defamatory, slanderous, or libelous statements.

Standards of Conduct

Employees must ensure that social media activity relating to the Company does not include unlawful discrimination, harassment, threats of violence, or other unlawful conduct. Violations of this policy may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Confidentiality and Representation

Employees must:

- Protect Company trade secrets, intellectual property, and confidential or commercially sensitive information, including financial data, business strategies, product development, customer information, and employee details.
- Not represent themselves as speaking on behalf of the Company unless expressly authorized.
- Clearly state that opinions are personal when referencing the Company.
- Comply with copyright, trademark, and other applicable intellectual property laws.

Media Inquiries

Employees who are not authorized to speak on behalf of the Company must not respond to media inquiries. All media requests for official Company statements must be directed to Human Resources.

Professional Social Media Accounts

Employees may maintain professional social media accounts (e.g., LinkedIn). Any professional account that references or promotes the Company must comply with this policy and be used in a professional and appropriate manner. Employees are responsible for the content and management of their accounts. The Company will not require employees to disclose personal social media usernames or passwords, access personal accounts in the Company's presence, change privacy settings, add Company personnel as contacts, or disclose personal social media accounts, except as permitted by law or for purposes of a Company investigation.

Retaliation and Employee Rights

Retaliation against any employee who reports a potential violation of this policy in good faith or participates in an investigation is prohibited and may result in disciplinary action. Nothing in this policy is intended to interfere with, restrain, or prevent employees from exercising rights protected by law, including the right to engage in lawful concerted activity.
